

Hungarian market. macroeconomic developments & trends.

Hungary, one of the most popular investment destinations of all post-communist countries, got nearly one third of all foreign direct investment flowing into Central Europe, with cumulative FDI totaling more than € 132 billion since 1989. The country entered a severe recession in 2008 and it's economy is still in recovery. Good strategic position, unexploited natural resources and support from IMF and EU are reasons to believe that Hungary will return to macroeconomic stabilization and growth.

Hungary GDP growt.

◆ GDP growth

Hungary Inflation rate.

◆ Inflation rate

Hungary Unemployment rate.

◆ Unemployment rate

Hungary Public Debt.

◆ Public debt rate

Sources: weastra, based on the Central Statistical Office of Hungary, Hungarian National Bank, Eurostat, OECD, Hungarian Investment and Trade Agency.

Last update: October 2011, *forecast

